CHEHOCTON SCHOOL EDITION

33rd YEAR-VOL.12 MAY 1956 HANCOCK, N.Y.

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE SENIOR CLASS OF 1956

As you face the world of tomorrow you will look back on the experiences you have gained at H.C.S. You will be called upon to evaluate your personality, your ability, your talents, your ambitions and your ideals. The answer you get will determine your degree of success. You will get out of the future, just as in the past, only what you put into it.

This world of tomorrow will take a wide awake, intelligent citizenry, with each person carrying his own responsibility and not shirking his duty. He must be willing to set his sights high and then put forth every effort to attain his goals. Many decisions will have to be made, and long, careful thinking must precede each decision. The world of today and tomorrow is a fast-moving one. Sometimes in its unrelenting rush we fail to take the necessary time to pause and think through a problem so that we can arrive at the best solution. We must learn to work and live together for in this kind of unity does our strength lie.

You are living in the greatest country in the world. Be ever thankful and grateful for that. Being a member of this nation, you will be called upon to face problems never before presented in the history of all mankind. Our hope for the future rests with you. Our faith in you assures us that you will not fail.

My best wishes go with you and may you bring honor to your Alma Mater and set a worthy example for others who will follow.

...Edward S. Onody

EDITORIAL

A question being asked with increasing frequency today is: "Are American schools preparing capable citizens to run our future Democracy?"

There are five major steps required of our school in accomplishing this signal duty. First, and most obvious, is the development of a high degree of intellectual and academic ability to enable the child to think for himself and make wise decisions based on careful analysis. Second, there should be social training (through sports, clubs, etc.) to show him how to get along and play an active part in community social life. Third, he must be inculcated with a love of culture and beauty. Fourth, he must receive vocational training in order to make him a productive member of society; and perhaps most important of all, he must be imbued with high ethical and moral values essential to permanent civilization.

On the basis of this outline alone, we are not able to judge the standards of education in the entire nation. We can, however, state unhesitatingly, that the students of Hancock Central School are receiving as fine an education as could be desired.

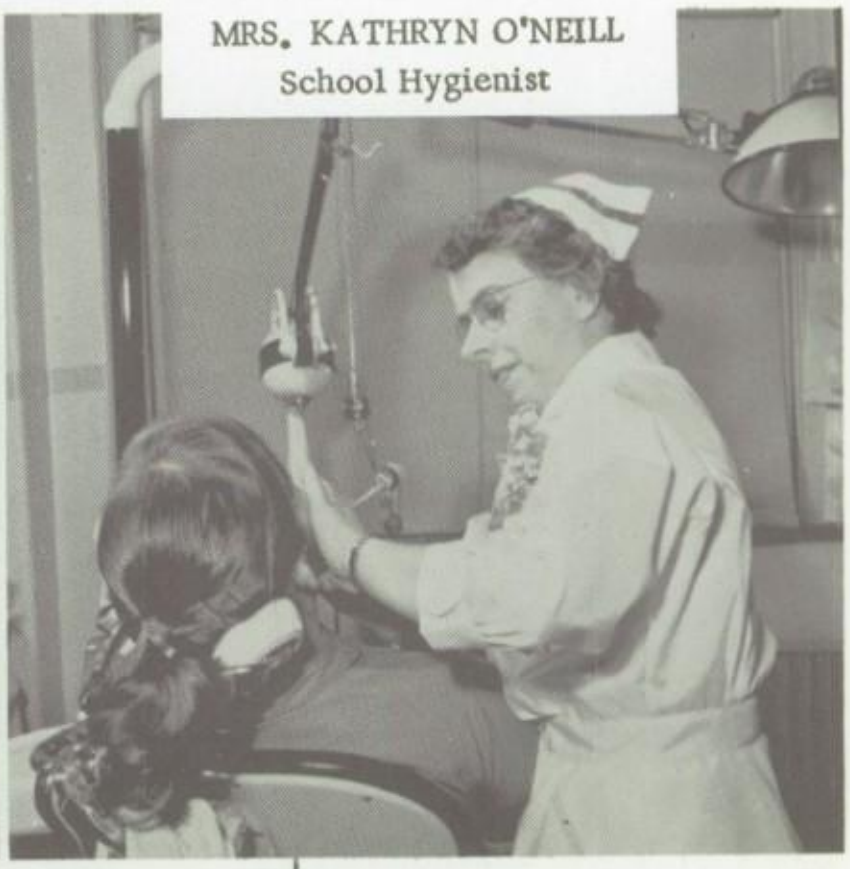
MRS. KATHRYN O'NEILL
School Hygienist



One of the busy centers at Hancock Central School is the dental and health office. Good health and good dental habits have become an important part of our curriculum.

There is modern equipment for use in administering to student's needs and for caring for them if they should be taken ill during school day. Students who have been absent must be readmitted here by the health officer. Physical examinations and minor accidents can be balanced here.

A full-time hygienist handles our extensive dental health program. She gives sodium fluoride treatments. cleanings, and class instructions.

Each year assembly programs and exhibits are sponsored by this department.
